CLASSIFICATION INTERVIEWS

Our classification interviews had a decidedly US feel this week with PP Mike Doyle, USA interviewing Rtn Aaron Henry, USA and Rtn Dana Caron, USA interviewing PE Dean Outerson, grew up in the US.

With both PP Mike and Rtn Aaron sharing common roots in Arkansas, this was the theme to this interview while it is clear Mike is from there, on listening to Aaron, it is not so clear.

PP Mike started by focusing on Aaron's anthropology undergraduate degree and his 'laser focus' on his degree and Aaron's decision to leave school in his first year to travel around the US on a motorcycle.

PP Mike then went on to one of Aaron's early loves, much to the amusement of those present and while details were shared at the meeting, due to their delicate nature, details as to their age gap and common bonds will be omitted.

Studying in Fayetteville, it turns out the two might have met in a local bar while studying there, Aaron as a bartender, Mike as a regular.

On leaving university, Aaron worked for a while in the mid-90s in New Orleans, where he shared a place with a crazy Maori guy who would get him into various bar fights.

Aaron then studied film at USC and into the industry which led to him coming to Thailand with his Thai wife who quickly went back to the US, leaving Aaron here on his own.

In closing, Mike gave Aaron a Redneck test, three questions of which Aaron got two right, one about Burt Reynolds, and of course, one about the Razorbacks.

His classification remains a mystery.

Rtn Dana was much softer on PE Dean starting with a quick overview of Dean's origins near London, Ontario and then to Jacksonville, Florida where he grew up.

Much of Dana's questioning was to do with PE Dean's adventures in Japan and his start there in Niigata on the JET program, but quickly branching into Dean's long-haired era as a disc jockey on radio and as in-stadium announcer for the local football team.

Spending 11 years in Japan, PE Dean got married early in his time there, but eventually divorced.

He got into being a DJ, through his wife's connections at a local Rock-n-Roll Diner where he was responsible for hiring and training DJs. He also did a few gigs every week himself. With long hair and "the look", they were initially afraid he was too hard core.

Dana and Dean then went through his post-Japan, pre-Thailand adventures in Bali and Jakarta, Indonesia before moving on to talk about Thailand, where among other things he worked for former Rotarian Jim Fowler.

On our Club's board eight times and the Canadian Chamber Board six times, PE Dean has been at Sasin School of Management for six years. Hired by former Rtn Ian Fenwick, he is responsible for marketing and communications at the school.

Dana finished by finding out why Dean is a Gunner, Arsenal fan, which turns out to be based on him being a fan of Dennis Bergkamp, a new Arsenal signing in 1996, and his familiarity with Arsenal's new manager that same year, Arsene Wenger, who had previously coached in Japan.

His classification also remains a mystery.
