MEETINGS : EVERY FRIDAY AT NOON

MYANMAR

As Don Lavoie reminded him the other day "a good speech is always a good story", and with that in mind, Rtn Mark told us about his friend, Serge Pun and how his story reflects what has happened and is happening in Myanmar today.

Serge Pun was born in Rangoon in 1953 to a Chinese banker from Calcutta and grew up in Rangoon during "the great years" when it had the best infrastructure, education, hospitals and social life in Asia.

However, at 12, Serge's and his family were sent back to China when all foreigners were forced to leave. Two years later, the Chinese "Cultural Revolution" broke out and he was sent for "re-education" in the rice fields of China.

Serge would spend the next two years working 18 hours a day until his older sister Pat was able to sponsor him to come and live in Hong Kong.

Selling 'air fresheners' from office to office, he met Elmer Busch, a German real estate broker in who told him after he had finished his pitch, "Son, you are too damn good to be selling air fresheners and tomorrow you are going to start working for me selling real estate.

For the next ten years Serge learned the real estate business before starting Serge Pun & Associates in Hong Kong.

It was the early 80's and Rtn Mark had started to travel from Vancouver to Hong Kong to meet investors who owned property in Vancouver. An associate suggested Mark look up Serge Pun and that was the beginning of their relationship.

In 1988, Mark and his wife Dawn went on a holiday to Thailand. Six month later, he had sold his house, furniture, real estate business, packed up his two young kids and moved to Bangkok with 13 suitcases.

At the same time, Serge decided to move and together they set up Serge Pun & Associates Thailand in 1989 and went on to develop Abdulrahim Place and Lake Green Apartments.

In 1990, Myanmar was just beginning to open for investment and in 1991, he opened Serge Pun & Associates Myanmar. During the next five years, he negotiated three land leases with the government for 60 years to develop these properties on a 70/30 profit split.

His first project was FMI City & PunHlaing Golf Estate, started in 1994, was Myanmar's first gated community on 1,200 Rai with 2,000 homes and PunHlaing Golf Estate. Both projects came to a grinding halt in 2003 and would sit dormant for the next eight years.

The second project, Star City, covering 1,000 Rai, and a 6-hole golf course, also sat dormant for the next 8 years.

The third and prime development site was with the State Railway of Myanmar on land at the prime intersection in downtown Yangon. Serge developed an 88-room hotel and the first a/c office and shopping complex in Yangon.

This also came to a grinding halt in 2003 after the sanctions and financial crisis which saw occupancy rates plunge and room rates fall to 25.

However, Serge did a back-door listing on the Singapore Stock Exchange in 2006 and set up Yoma Strategic Holdings entitling investors to the "economic interest" of his real estate investments in Myanmar.

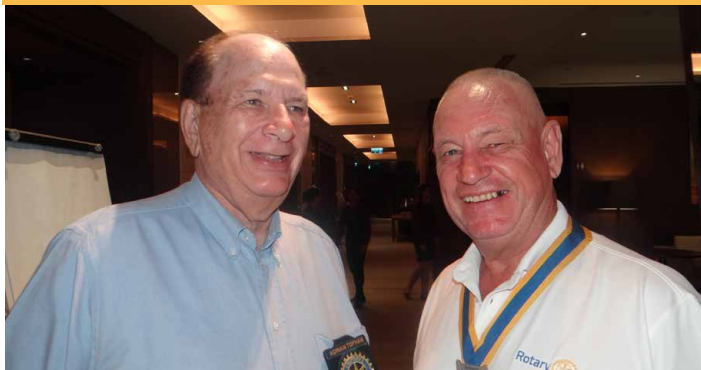

In November 2011, Hilary Clinton visited and in January 2012 Serge asked me to and live and work in Myanmar. In November 2012, Barack Obama visited and soon after that the "great gold rush" of Myanmar began.
